BALANCED INCOMPLETE BLOCK DESIGNS (BIBD instead of RBD)

- In a RBD: all treatments (test and check) must appear equal number of times in all block (all blocks must be complete)
- Situation: If the test treatments (germplasm) under evaluation (initial generation of crop improvement studies) are more, availability is scarce coupled with their unknown true potential, use of RBD necessitates bigger experimental area
- Remedy: Balanced Incomplete Block (BIB) design: estimates treatments contrasts with more precision and also need not demand – repeating each of the test treatments in every block. Such a constructed layout, not only saves the precious parental material but also directly reduces all the related inputs.
- Application: Venugopal, R., KRM Swamy and M.K. Chandra Prakash, 2008. Augmented BIB Design: An alternative statistical design in germplasm evaluation trials, Journal of Horticultural Sciences, 3(1): 84-88.
