

Report on Value Added Course on "Radio Jockey"

The Department of Visual Communication Technology conducted a Value Added Course on Radio Jockeying for 30 Visual Communication students with the aim of providing them with specialized skills and knowledge in the field of radio broadcasting. This course, tailored to the specific needs of Vis.Com students, focused on enhancing their communication abilities, technical skills, and overall understanding of the radio industry.

The course spanned of 30 Hours, covering various key aspects related to radio jockeying. The curriculum was designed to strike a balance between theoretical knowledge and practical application, ensuring that students gained hands-on experience to complement their classroom learning.

The course placed a strong emphasis on developing effective communication skills, including voice modulation, pronunciation, and articulation. Students were introduced to different radio formats and genres, enabling them to understand the diverse nature of the medium. Specialized training in scriptwriting and storytelling was provided to help students create compelling narratives for radio. Practical sessions on operating radio equipment, sound editing software, and managing live broadcasts were conducted.

This Value Added Course successfully equipped the participants with a well-rounded skill set, bridging the gap between visual communication and radio broadcasting. The interactive and practical approach of the course ensured that the 30 students not only gained theoretical knowledge but also developed the confidence and skills necessary for a successful career in radio jockeying.
